FAQ

Is it possible to gain followers without making videos? Gaining followers without creating videos is challenging, but possible. Engaging with other people's content, liking, commenting, and following accounts in your niche can attract some attention to your profile. However, creating videos is the most effective way to grow your follower base.

What hashtags should I use on TikTok? You should use a mix of popular and niche-specific hashtags. Popular hashtags increase your reach, while niche hashtags help you connect with a targeted audience. Research what hashtags are trending in your area of interest.

How often should I post on TikTok? Posting consistently is important. Aim for at least one to three times per day. Experiment with different posting times to see what works best for your audience.

Does TikTok promote certain accounts? TikTok's algorithm promotes content based on various factors, including engagement, video completion rate, and relevance. Creating high-quality, engaging content increases your chances of being featured on the "For You" page.

Can I use multiple sounds in one TikTok video? Currently, TikTok allows you to use only one main sound per video. However, you can add voiceovers or music from the TikTok library in addition to the primary sound.
